Dear Homeaglow Strategic Finance Team,

I run a home services business. Since 2023 I have owned and operated Rodriguez Pressure Washing LLC, which means I have personally knocked on more than 1,000 doors, priced jobs, bought and maintained the equipment, and worked to turn one-time customers into repeat ones. So when I read that Homeaglow has helped more than 100,000 cleaning professionals earn over $250 million, I understood what that number means from the side of the person holding the equipment. The Strategic Finance Associate role is the chance to bring that ground-level understanding to the model that decides how the platform grows, and I want it. I hold a BS in Computer Science with a 3.8 GPA and am currently pursuing an MS in Finance and Investment Management at Sacred Heart University.

Your posting says you care more about what someone can do than where they have done it, and that you want someone who treats the spreadsheet as one tool among many. That is how I already work. From 2022 to 2025 I taught myself MQL5 and NinjaScript, designed algorithmic trading tools for futures markets, and built software that generates futures trading strategies. I marketed it myself and sold packages to roughly five clients, producing four-figure revenue. I also did contract work converting clients' manual trading strategies into automated algorithms, which is the same discipline you describe for investigating performance: take an ambiguous question, break it into testable steps, and work it down to root cause rather than guessing. I am proficient in Python and comfortable in C#. I have not used SQL in a production setting, but I write code every day and expect to be productive in it quickly, and I am genuinely enthusiastic about using Claude to move faster on analysis.

I want to be honest about the gaps. I have not worked in investment banking, and I have not built cohort or LTV analysis in a consumer retention context. What I have is a working understanding of retention from the inside of a service business, where I learned which customers come back and why, and a record of learning hard things on my own and getting them right. During my internship at Edward Jones I validated client records and researched investment strategies for senior management. Playing D1 soccer for a team ranked third nationally in the NAIA, and earning the Champions of Character Award, taught me to work under pressure and put the team first. I am also bilingual in Spanish, which matters in a business built on the people who do the work.

Homeaglow is bootstrapped and so am I. I am hardworking, I learn fast, and I take real pride in getting things right the first time. I would welcome the chance to talk about how I can help turn your data into the decisions that shape how Homeaglow grows. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Diego Rodriguez
